

From: "DHN" <deafandhearingnetwork@gmail.com>
To: "Melissa Yingst Huber" <mhuber.dhn@gmail.com>
Subject: Our second story arc with LEAD-K!

Hi Sponsors,

We had such a wonderful response to our first story arc last week (More than 50,000 views so far) - we are excited to share our second story arc.

There was some confusion last week with some sponsors. Some shared the direct website link, we ask you to please share it via Facebook from the Deaf and Hearing Network page. That will also be the easiest way to do so, you won't have to add a description, or attach a thumbnail, or whatsoever, just click "share." Sadly, our site isn't quite as user friendly as we'd like. You may have noticed the auto link Facebook generated had an odd photo and the title said DHN Stands for and then the description said we're a national news agency. If you post it that way you have to go in and manually change all of that. However, by just sharing our Facebook link you don't change anything and we can keep better track of who's viewed what.

However, here is all of the information in the case you choose to post it yourself.

Deaf Children Need Adequate Communication to Develop a Healthy Brain, Experts Say

Experts tell us how the brain works when it doesn't develop properly and when it does. Their solution? Giving Deaf children access to both ASL and English leads to healthy development and should be part of every child's learning process from day one.

Next week we meet two women who did just that.

<http://www.watchdhn.com/#!language-equality/co59><<http://www.watchdhn.com/#!language-equality/co59>>

We've attached the thumbnail we used so you can easily change out the auto generated photo. Just hit change image and pick our thumbnail.

You can also change the title and description of the link box to the above information. Feel free to add your own status update though.

We know that's a bit of work though, which is why we encourage you to just share from our Facebook instead.

We look forward to sharing more of these. Expect the next one on Thursday of next week.

Thanks!
DHN Team

--

Peyton Gallovich

DHN Executive Producer

www.WatchDHN.com<<http://www.WatchDHN.com>>